RAILWAY AND COMMERCE.

HABLES PRANCIS ADAMS ON UNION PACIFIC NEW YORK, November 12, -Special to the Chicago Tribune,-Charles Francis Adams, the president of the Union Pacific rallway, said to-day that the first suggestion of a new issue of collateral trust bonds to pay off the floating debt was one he heard on his arrival here yesterday. The Union Pacific did not propose to issue new bonds of any description whatever, nor to authorize any more mortgages. The net floating debt in July was $5,000,000. The books had not been gone over sings, but were now closed to be adjusted up to September 30. While dividends were suspended $500,000 a month could be applied to the payment of the floating debt. The company hal a great many quick assets, which were proper things to sell off for the extragulahment of the debt, if a good price could be obtained for them. Of the cld collateral trusts a little under $1,000,000 remained unsold. Other bonds, including sinking funds, Kansas Pacific consolodated, and Short times, could not be disposed of, but the control of no property would be surrendered. The floating debt gave no trouble. No loans had been made to provide for it and there was no need of making any. The dividends would be resumed as soon as the money to pay them was earned. That was a question of the them was earned. That was a question of the future. The claims of the government, Mr. Adams said, amounted to only $1,-500,000, and the company could pay them at any time without being crippled in the least. The relations of the road with other lines in the west were friendly, and there was nothing to menace its revenues, Mr. Adams goes to Washington to-morrow to consult with the counsel of the road about the United States bail case, which comes up in the court of claims next week.

Mr. W. E. Connor, in speaking to-day of the prospects of the Union Pacific railroad and the hopes that the officers of that company had of settling the affairs satisfactorily, said:

TARIFF ABROAD. THE RULING COMMERCIAL QUESTION OF FREE

TRADE AND PROTECTION AS ENTERTAINED IN

ENGLAND AND FRANCE, LONDON, November 12.-The question of the imposition of some sort of tariffs for the protection of home products and industries has been brought to the front again in both England and France. In this country the question, which is a veritable bugbear to the present government has been revived by a formal complaint from the artisans in vari trades. A deputation of workingmen to-day waited upon Mr. McAlister, M. P., who is a tory and an avowed protectionist. They represented to him in forcible language the hardships to which they had been subjected by the system of government bounties to manufacture s which has recently been put in operation in several continental countries.

They said that the effect of these bounties upon English manufactures was precisely the same as though the government referred to had imposed discriminating duties against English goods. The granting of bounties had at first sight a less hostile appearance than the imposition of import duties, but its practthe imposition of import duties, but its practical effect upon English industries was just as bad or oven worse. A Belgian manufacturer, for instance, could produce any given article more cheaply than his English competitor, because a part of its cost was returned to him by his government. The first result of this was, of arse, to shut out the Euglish article from Belgium, because it could not compete in price with the home-made article. Next, it injured the sale of British goods in all markets of the world by placing them under an artificial but decided disadvantage in competition with the bountied products. It even destroyed to some extent the home market for English wares, for many articles could be made in Bel-gium and laid down in England at a cost less than that of their manufacture in England. Finally-and that was the worst feature of the case in the opinion of the deputationthis unfair competition caused English manu feeturers to cut down the wages of their own workmen to a point that was little above star-vation. Mr. McAlister listened attentively to these arguments and expressed his entire sympathy with them. He said that he had al-ways looked upon England's free-trade policy as a suicidal blunder because it had compelled other nations to meet it by hostile discrimi-nations, either in the form of bounties or tariffs. He promised that he would use his influence and vote to secure the enactment of countervailing duties against the products of those countries which subsid zed their manufacturers with bounties. This promise was hailed with cheers, and the deputation withdrew. The Liberals are now against at these outspoken utterances by Mr. Mc-Allister, and they call upon the Tory leaders to disavow his "hereay." The liberal papers say that probably not one man in fifty, even of the tories, believes in the McAlister panacea, and that his only object was to add to the embarrassments of the government. In France Premier Ferry has already de cided upon Isyying a moderate duty upon foreign cereals. The public argument in favor of this measure is that it is necessary for the pretection of the French farmer. The real cause of the Premier's decision, however, is said to be a pressure brought upon him by a syndicate of speculators who are long of wheat.

Diphtheria in Chicago. Chicago Times.

That considerable interest is felt in the prev alence of diphtheria in the city was evidenced yesterday by the large number of applications received at the health department for copies of the board of health circulation on the subperson, to say nothing of the inquiries coming by mail, which Dr. De Wolf regards as a goo men, for the observance of the rules laid down by them, he thinks, will not only assist in warding off the disease, but will also mitigate its severity if it should appear in epidemic form. One physician who wrote for circulars said he had heard of from twenty to thirty cases of the disease in his neighbor hood in the past ten days, which served to re mind the health department that if the malady was prevailing to any great extent the physicians had been remiss in reporting the cases as required by law. The records show that less than half a dozen cases have been reported from the city at large for over a week. In fact, ten cases of scarlet fever have been re-ported to one of diphtheria, which goes to confirm Commissioner DeWolf in the belief that the prevalence of the disease has been greatly exaggerated, and, furthermore, that there is no occasion of alarm over its spread n the community.
